PRESIDENT: Before we proceed to the interpellations on to-day's agenda, I have to inform the House of one fact. Mr. Truscott, who should have been present to-day and in whose name about five questions have been entered in the answers, was prevented, for reasons beyond his control, from returning to Trivandrum. He is coming by air and honourable members might have heard of the sad accident to the aeroplane on the last occasion. Even on this occasion, the aeroplane is not free from that accident. It has been held up at Goa on account of engine trouble. A telegram has been received from Mr. Truscott to say that he has been held up at Goa and that efforts are being made to restart the engine and he hopes to arrive here in the course of the day. That is the position. I am sure that the House will be anxious to elicit fuller replies from the Chief Engineer in regard to the questions on the agenda of to-day. If the House has no objection, I think we may take up those questions tomorrow rather than have incomplete answers being delivered by someone on the Treasury Bench who has not previously studied the file.
